We want to give children an education of the highest standard, we aim for excellence in all our school activities and encourage all students, whatever their ability to achieve the best they possibly can. We believe that providing students with a well balanced, enriching and engaging literacy curriculum will aid them in developing into self-assured communicators. Our literacy policy will ensure that all students become confident speakers, listeners, readers and writers, preparing them for life in the 21st century and beyond.

Literacy definition - "the set of skills which allows an individual to engage fully in society and in learning, through the different forms of language and the range of texts, which society values and finds useful" children as competent and confident life-long learners.

At BJHS we believe that literacy is of paramount importance for all students. Without literacy skills students will not be able to engage with the eight curricular areas and therefore they will not progress to become a successful learner or confident individual. The literacy skills that a student develops in BJHS will form the foundation for learning throughout their life and will have a real impact on many aspects of their future lives and careers.

What is Literacy?

The literacy experiences and outcomes (E&Os) will promote the development of skills in using language, particularly those that are used regularly by everyone in their everyday lives. These include the ability to apply knowledge about language. They reflect the need for young people to be able to communicate effectively both face-to-face and in writing through an increasing range of media. They recognise the importance of listening and talking and of effective collaborative working in the development of thinking and in learning. In particular, the experiences and outcomes address the important skills of critical literacy. Children and young people not only need to be able to read for information: they also need to be able to work out what trust they should place on the information and to identify when and how people are aiming to persuade or influence them.

Literacy and English can be broken down into three main, broad areas. They are:

- Listening and Talking
- Reading
- Writing

Within each of these areas there will be opportunities for learning under five headers. They are:

- Enjoyment and Choice (all areas)
- Tools (all areas)
- Finding and using information (Listening and Talking, Reading) or Organising and using information (Writing)
- Understanding, analysing and evaluating (Listening and Talking, Reading)
- Creating texts (Listening and Talking, Writing)

Teaching & Learning

It is important to use the literacy experiences and outcomes alongside those of the other curriculum areas when planning for learning. All staff should be familiar with the appropriate documentation to inform the teaching and learning in their classroom. Discussions and decisions need to be made across subjects to ensure that expectations in literacy are both constant and consistently high. This will include the level of text to be used, presentation, punctuation and spelling.

Planning & Programmes Of Work

In order to ensure continuity and coherence and to effectively manage learning across the ages and stages, well-planned programmes of study should be developed with the following in mind:

- Programmes and class planning are matched to the CfE Experiences and Outcomes (Es and Os) and are assessed using the relevant Benchmarks.
- Teachers identify which Es and Os are taught as they develop courses. SLT will work with teaching staff to ensure there will be full coverage over time and will sample student work at regular intervals.
- As the students progress through the levels, teachers ensure that there is progression in skills and in knowledge and understanding.

Assessment & Recording

Assessment of literacy needs to be valid (allowing staff to draw conclusions about what learners can do), reliable (provide the same result of the assessment is repeated) and proportionate (so as not to place excessive burdens on students or staff).

As literacy is the responsibility of all staff, and because of the importance of literacy across all aspects of a young person's learning, all staff should be clear about their responsibilities and their roles in the assessment of literacy. Assessment in literacy will focus on children and young people's progress in developing and applying essential skills in listening and talking, reading and writing. The Benchmarks provided by Education Scotland will allow staff to track and evidence the literacy progression of all students within Baltasound Junior High School, this will be supported through regular opportunities to moderate and sample learners work.

The students in Early Years will use the Highland Literacy continuums as a way to support literacy skills, this includes areas such as phonological awareness, fine/gross motor skills. Pupils will be tracked using the appropriate Developmental Overviews and Tracking/Monitoring discussions.

Pupils in P1,P4, P7 and S3 will complete SNSA Assessments during terms 3 or 4 to support teacher judgement.

Student progress will be tracked over time with appropriate intervention, support or challenge based on the individual student need put in place.

Monitoring & Evaluation

Teaching staff will use a variety of ways to ensure that standards and expectations are consistently high across the school. Staff will regularly meet to share examples of work and look at ways to improve literacy in all subjects. This is crucial at times of transition, to ensure individual needs are taken into account during this stage.

Pieces of written work will also be saved into the Tracking and Progress Area of the Teachers Pool at regular intervals in the school year/within the level. This will allow school staff to monitor the progression of students and intervene as and when necessary.

The Highland Literacy Progression Frameworks are used throughout Early Years and Primary as a tool to support tracking pupil progression.

Resources

Resources used in the development of a literacy rich curriculum include a wide variety of texts, books, T.V., listening centres, video and audio recorders, computers and iPads. Technology will play a key role in allowing students with Additional Support Needs (ASN) to fully access the curriculum and become independent and confident learners. Dedicated software and applications may be used by staff to ensure equity and equality with regard literacy progression.

Jolly Phonics and Grammar is used throughout primary to help develop a strong understanding of phonics and how grammar works. The Emerging Literacy Phonological Awareness and Pre Writing Screeners are carried out with P1 pupils (and sometimes others) as a way of planning interventions and supporting learners. Early Years and Primary have recently begun using Talk For Writing as a strategy to help develop Writing skills.

Dialect

The cultural and linguistic backgrounds of students and staff must be recognised. Students will be encouraged to be confident and creative in the language they bring to school. Students and staff will appreciate the range of accents and dialects they encounter and support each other to ensure everyone develops an understanding of local, national and international differences and similarities.
